BRYAN IN RICHMOND.

and Burton Talk on the Currency Question.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 19.—Members of the American Institute of Bankers, in annual session here yesterday, heard Senator Theodore E. Burton back the Democratic Currency Bill. The Senator condemned the regional reserve bank plan proposed in the bill, but his criticism was aimed chiefly at the provision authorizing the federal reserve board to control the issuance of currency.

"It is based on an erroneous idea," said "namely, that a government political organization may properly assume the providing of a supply of currency, directly or indirectly. It is proposed that the government shall assume in the first instance the redemption of all circulating notes. This should be left to the banks exclusively. It might be necessary for the treasury itself to maintain a gold reserve, as is now done for the redemption of greenbacks."

The Senator strongly commended the provisions granting authority to national banks to accept certain classes of paper, the proposed establishment of branches in foreign countries and the recently inserted clause to require reserve banks receiving the circulating notes of other banks to take immediate steps for their redemption.

Secretary of State Bryan delivered before the convention virtually his last public speech on the currency question just passed by the House.

"Banks exist for the accommodation of the public and not for the control of business," he said, and added that in that sentence was a fundamental truth and one on which banking legislation should be founded. It was the keynote of the Secretary's speech.

"We have had for two generations," continued, "legislation on banking matters, but they have been, almost universally, framed in favor of the bankers. There can be only one purpose in placing money in banks, that is to get it out again. If you think otherwise, suppose you draw up a paper on this subject."

Mr. Bryan declared Congressman Clegg's speech on the currency bill before the Democratic caucus left little or nothing to be said on the subject by him or anybody else and he commended it to the members of the banking institute for reading. He said the plan to form regional banks for the more equal distribution of the money of the country—the decentralization of national finance—was a step in the right direction.

The Owens-Glass bill was not drawn with the idea of centralization. There has been too much Wall Street. I am in favor of this system of regional banks, for in it I see a step for the smaller institutions. It has been objected that the government should not issue the money of the country. We hear such objection only in times of peace. In times of war there is no question as to should issue the money. It must be the government. Your legislatures enact laws whereby men shall be hanged, and do you tell me that the government has no right to control a bank?"

DECLARED INSANE.

Prominent Young Lawyer Accused of Death Penalty.

Danville, Va., Sept. 19.—Roy C. Coleman, a widely known young lawyer, who was arrested on a serious charge preferred against him by Helen Schultz, a pretty German girl living in Schoolfield, has been adjudged insane by a commission appointed to ascertain his mental condition.

Dr. L. S. Foster, of Norfolk, former superintendent of the Eastern State hospital at Williamsburg, who was called to examine Coleman's mental condition, gave it as his opinion that the young lawyer is mentally weak.

The stories of the affair as they were given out Saturday night differ greatly, but it seems that Helen Schultz went to the office of Mr. Coleman, and while in the office she claims she was assaulted. Upon making an excuse of some kind, she was allowed her liberty and ran screaming into the hall of the building.

Persons along the street heard her cries and an officer was soon upon the scene and arrested Mr. Coleman, who was released under bond for his appearance in court.

The alleged offense was committed several months ago, but was not made known until after the wedding, which resulted in the husband causing his wife to swear out a warrant for Angelakos.

BRYAN GETS $350 FOR TALK

Addresses Chautauqua at Home of Jefferson, and Tells Natives he's Virginian at Heart.

Charlottesville, Sept. 19.—Here at the home of Thomas Jefferson, and the seat of the University of Virginia, Secretary Bryan delivered last night his lecture on "The making of a man" to an audience of about 1,500.

In spite of the wretched weather, Bryan's share in the receipts is estimated at $350, and he is scheduled to deliver two lectures today, the first at Culpeper, in the afternoon, and the other at Warrenton, at night.

Bryan reached here from Richmond shortly after 6 o'clock, and was met at station by a big committee from Chamber of Commerce and escorted to Judge Dabney's residence by many persons in automobiles.

The Secretary was greeted at the tent with a chautauqua salute, and in referring to Judge Dabney's words of welcome said that it was some times gratifying to have friends who exaggerated one's virtues, since it makes up for the abuse one received from his enemies.

Bryan said that he felt at home in Virginia, as his father was born not far from Charlottesville, and never allowed his children to forget that he came from the Old Dominion. The first child born in his family, he said, was named Virginia, and he himself always comes from the State with the feeling that the latch string is on the outside.
